

Tues. Eve.

9:25

3-7-44

Dear Swell Family!

Yes, it was swell to talk to you tonight. But, as usual, the 5 min. run went fast.

I can see you all around the phone some time I call. I'd sure like to be there with you — We'll tear the demon talk-phone off the wall & throw it away. Home is a wonderful thing to have now tho. The cheap rates are in effect at 6:00 here now so I don't have to wait so long now. It only took about 15 min. today.

I wanted to ask you about your trip out, Mom. When do you plan to come? Soon, I hope! I'd love to have you & Ruth here at the same time, honey but I think it'd be better if you came separately cause I'd wanta spend all my time with both of you & I don't think you'd enjoy winter. Ruth & I neck & I couldn't very well talk to you when I was doing that. See what I mean?

She is planning to come out during her Spring vacation from School but I have no idea when that'll be. Maybe it's about the first of a month because I'll have plenty of dough then. If it works out that I need some dough, I can hit you guys for it, can't I? If not, because of income tax or any thing, please let me know, will ya?

 Thanks!!

Yes, Dad, I heard that you were due for a snow storm.
 You see, we have a weather report for the whole country before we go "up" + they're seldom ever wrong. Now they'll be figure it out is more than I know!

So the picture made me look thin, eh? I'm not. Not fat either but I think the grin just made my face longer than the jacket had an effect, too.

That sure is some jacket, isn't it? Comes in mighty handy.
By the way, it was 23° below 0° ~~the~~ at 20,000 ft.
day before yesterday. Will it?
I think we'll gonna get heated suits one o' these days. I sure hope so!

Had you liked the shirt, Dale. I wanted to wear some but just couldn't do it. I sure wish I could wear shirts like that again. Don't be in too big a hurry to leave those "civvies", pal!

As I told you, have to rise & do my descent to shine at 3:30 a.m. tomorrow so tell next time love you all "Whit"